

Introduction

Buildings and Houses Index

Many Research Library patrons ask questions such as: How can I find the history of the house or building I just purchased? Who owned it before me? When was it built? Are there pictures of it at earlier times?

To help locate materials to answer these questions, we have created an index, found both online and in print form. The online version can be searched by name of the building or address.

The index shows items in our collection that have information about particular buildings and houses in Monroe County, Indiana. For many buildings, there are multiple places to look. They might be located in Research Library books, vertical files, church files, the permanent collection (in the Past Perfect catalog), or other places. Each entry has an abbreviation for the location in the Library. Abbreviations and locations are explained in the Index Sources Key below.

In order to determine previous owners, items in the index might not help. There are three other places to obtain that information:

1. Monroe County Geographic Information System (GIS) is an online resource found at <http://monroein.egis.39dn.com/#>
After locating the property, the “Detailed Property Assessment Report” contains a “Transfer of Ownership” section listing previous owners. However, it is incomplete from the early 1900’s back in time.
2. For ownership of land parcels (but not specifically for buildings) from about 1885 to the present, go to the Monroe County Assessor’s office (second floor of the Courthouse) and use the “transfer books”. Arranged by township and surname, these can yield the history of a parcel of land from the present back to about 1880. The Assessor’s Office staff can help orient the user.
3. For ownership of land parcels (but not specifically for buildings) before the 1800’s, the Library has two sets of Tract Books that can be used to trace buyers and sellers over time. The Library staff will assist you in using these books.
