Monroe County Indiana
1820 U.S. Census Index

Introduction: This index of the Monroe County 1820 U.S. Census replaces the previous one included as part of Monroe County Census of 1820, 30, 40, 50, created in 1979 by Donald Matson. Like Matson’s, the present index used the original census sheets, although his depended upon microfilm and this one on images from Ancestry.

Information Categories: The 1820 census named only heads of households, and tallied the rest according to gender, age grouping, and race. A few other categories were tallied. Here are the column used by census-takers, with the abbreviation used in the index:

Column Information	Abbreviation in Index
Name of head of household
Number of males age less than 10	M < 10
Number of males age 10-16	M 10-16
Number of males age 16-18	M 16-18
Number of male Heads of Household age 16-26	M HH 16-26
Number of males age 26-45	M 26-45
Number of males age greater than 45	M 45-
Number of females age less than 10	F < 10
Number of females age 10-16	F 10-16
Number of female Heads of Household age 16-26	F HH 16-26
Number of females age 26-45	F 26-45
Number of females age greater than 45	F 45-
Number not naturalized	Not Nat
Number engaged in agriculture	Agri
Number engaged in commerce	Comm
Number engaged in manufacturing	Man
Number of male slaves age less than 14	M Slave <14
Number of male slaves age 14-26	M Slave 14-26

Caveats: There are several features of the information to bear in mind:

- While there is a column for “Males age 16-18,” there is no corresponding category for females
- There are two slave categories used in the Monroe County census, although there are more laid out in the U.S. Census format, not used by the census-taker. Yes, there were slaves in Monroe County in 1820, despite slavery being unlawful by the state constitution.
- In 1820, the census-taker used his or her own ruled paper in recording data rather than using a printed form as was the case in later census years. This means we have to assume that the census-taker used the same columns prescribed by the census, even though the actual hand-ruled records do not include column headings. The “Engaged in Agriculture” column shows the most numbers, as would be expected in 1820, and this seems to confirm that the columns created by the census-taker do actually match up to the official format.

Differences: There are a few differences between the present index and that created earlier by Matson.

- Matson saved space by placing male numbers above female numbers in the age-range cells. The present one uses separate cells for each gender.
- The present index includes the categories, Not Naturalized, Engaged in Agriculture, Engaged in Commerce, Engaged in Manufacture, Male Slave age less than 14, and Male Slave age 14-26, while Matson omitted those categories.
- Matson included two names that could not be found in the actual records. They are omitted in the index. The names are William Ross and John Tarkinson. They can be found on pages 14 and 16, respectively, in the Matson index.

Questionable Names: There are four names in the present index that are based on “best guesses.” Some pages of the records are taped over in the left margin, exactly over the last name of head of household. This made interpretation of some names problematic. The four “best guesses” are: John Moore (4th of 4 listed); James Thomson; John Thomson; and John White.
